Judge Averill and Receivers J. J. Mullen and Gilbert Ross are Relieved of Further Responsibilities.

The state supreme court yesterday rendered its decision in the matter of the writ of prohibition issued by that court on March 28, whereby, the district court of this city was prevented from taking any further action in the Nye and Ormsby County bank case. The decision of Supreme Judges Talbot and Norcross, concurring, makes the writ of prohibition permanent and restrains the fifth judicial court from looking after the affairs of the bank. This judgment practically places the defunct bank in the same relative position it occupied when the doors were closed. Receivers J. J. Mullen and Gilbert Ross, who were appointed by Judge M. R. Averill, are relieved of their situations and the custody of the affairs of the institutions is placed in the hands of George Hall, who was appointed receiver by Judge Langan after Judge Averill had made the first appointments. Hall was one of Golden's cashiers and at the time the banks suspended was employed in the Reno branch.

Golden has been working for Hall, and now that his henchman is in control the former president will have full sway to conduct the affairs as he sees fit. He will have full access to the vaults and will be in a position to pay all obligations should he so desire. There will be no fifth judicial court to interfere with his methods and to look after the interests of the depositors. At the time the bank suspended (voluntarily) the officials issued a statement saying that the institution was perfectly solvent with securities amounting to over a million dollars, while the liabilities were a mere $300,000, and predicted the paying of all depositors within a short time. However, when Judge Averill appointed two of Tonopah's representative business men, as receivers, they were denied permission to open the safes by Cashier C. H. Phillips, who acted under the instruction of Golden. Why Golden did not desire to have the safes opened, could not be learned for it is assured he had nothing to hide. Did not the statement of the other officials say the bank was solvent? But never the less the vaults containing the vast amounts of securities remained locked. Even the safe deposit vaults, containing valuables of those who had rented boxes, had to be blown open by a safe expert, so the renters could secure their belongings.

The grand jury of this county started to investigate the affairs on March 22, but up to date they have made no report and consequently there is no way to discover if they found any discrepancies in the statements of the officials. However, the decision of the supreme court does not deter them from returning an indictment or indictments, should they find that crooked work had been going on and the banking laws of the state of Nevada had been violated.

The arguing on the writ of prohibition was heard on April 6. Judge Averill was represented by Bartlett, Thatcher and Gibbons, while Campbell, Metson and Brown, and Boyd and Salsbury appeared for Frank Golden.

An effort was made by the Bonanza to secure the views of Receivers J. J. Mullen and Gilbert Ross. Mr. Ross happened to be in Manhattan, but when Mr. Mullen was asked concerning the matter he stated that being an official of the court, he did not think that he would be able to make any statement with propriety.

The appointment of Hall by Judge Langan has caused quite a good deal of discussion owing to the fact of the previous appointments by Judge Averill, who represented the stockholders and made the appointments after being petitioned to do so. Langan named Hall at the behest of the state bank commission.

And this ends the matter as far as the depositors are concerned. It has been stated that Golden has asserted the defunct institution would pay off all depositors within a short time if he had been named as receiver. Now that Hall has been named as the sole receiver and it is believed that he was named at the request of Mr. Golden or his representatives, the former bank president will have a chance to make good his word, for we know that he has the interests of the depositors at heart, and would even sacrifice his fortune to save his untarnished name.

One of the officials has even gone so far as to state that the stockholders would receive the amounts they had invested in purchasing shares of the bank stock. And even after this payment was made, he predicted a handsome dividend for the

NEVADA HILL CUTS ORE VEIN

From an excellent source of information it is learned that the management of the Nevada Hills at Fairview has cut at the lowest level, a magnificent cross vein five feet in width. The trend is northerly and southerly.

In some of the upper levels of the Nevada Hills bunches of ore were encountered, and it was thought that a big fault existed with the ore material dragged into it. The five feet now exposed at the lowest level is said to be solid ore, and will run from $50 to $75 a ton clear across.

The Nevada Hills will undoubtedly be taken over by George Wingfield and his eastern associates, and they will effect a consolidation with the Fairview Eagle. This plan, once consummated, the owners will proceed to erect a mill with a capacity at the start of at least twenty stamps and which may be increased to fifty or 100 in the course of time. The basis of consolidation is said to have been changed to five to one, on account of the new find. The new vein is said to trend directly into the Eagle's territory. Mr. Wingfield will be in New York this coming week, and it is claimed that he will exercise the option at once. The report of his engineer, Fred Selbert, who left for the Nevada Hills some days ago to make a final examination, has been compiled, and rumor has it that it is more than optimistic.
